New pedestrian space on George Street from Bathurst to Goulburn streets

The City of Sydney is extending the George Street pedestrian boulevard from Bathurst Street to Rawson Place. This is part of our response to the Covid-19 pandemic and will complete our vision for a fully pedestrianised George Street. Overall, the project will create 9,000 square metres of extra space, with wider footpaths to enable physical distancing, and new spaces for businesses to operate when safe to do so.

More space for people to move around the city centre is now available, with the opening of new mid-block pedestrian areas on George Street, between Bathurst and Goulburn streets. This section between Bathurst and Goulburn streets is the first part to open to the public.

People in this section will be able to cross the light rail tracks freely with footpaths flush against the tracks. Remember to look out for the light rail – it can be very quiet and can't stop quickly or easily.

Construction works on George Street began in March 2021 and are being completed in stages to minimise disruption to the community. Works are now underway south of Goulburn Street to Rawson Place and should be completed early next year.

The project is funded by the City with support from the NSW and federal governments. You can read more about the project at cityofsydney/george-street
